

QUIZ

Take a quiz and assess what you have learned about health literacy.

CITIZENS  XELERATOR

Question 1: What is NOT health literacy?

- the ability to find and understand health information
- the ability to use medical terms in everyday situations
- the ability to make well-informed decisions about health

Question 2: What are the three stages of health literacy?

- functional, interactive, tranformative
- primary, interactive, critical
- functional, interactive, critical

Question 3: What does the second level of health literacy refer to?

- having basic skills to read and understand health information
- being able to critically approach to health information
- being able to discuss health information with others

Question 4: What does health literacy prevents?

- making rash decisions about health
- clearer communication with a doctor
- understanding health information

QUIZ

Question 5: What you should do while going to a doctor's appointment?

- ask questions for clarification
- pretend to understand and find the information online
- avoid going to the doctor

Question 6: The term for the ability to find and understand health information from electronic resources and to apply those information to address health problems is:

- iHealth Literacy
- Digital Health Literacy
- eHealth Literacy

Question 7: What does it mean to check the comprehension of the information found online?

- to check whether the information is written in a professional language
- to check whether the content is clear and understandable
- to check whether it is clear who the author is

QUIZ

Answer Sheet:

Q1: the ability to use medical terms in everyday situations

Q2: functional, interactive, critical

Q3: being able to discuss health information with others

Q4: making rash decisions about health

Q5: ask questions for clarification

Q6: eHealth Literacy

Q7: to check whether the content is clear and understandable